Q: Layout usage for extra space under tab bar I've seen in other apps that when you have a UITabBarController you are given a little space under it, for a status bar. How can I achieve this for my app? A: As per my knowledge this space is not added to the UITabBarController. They are added to the UITabBar so you must be using UITabBarController instead of UITabBar. For adding the space under the tab bar you can use the following delegate method in your UITabBarController

-(BOOL)tabBarController:(UITabBarController*)tabBarController shouldSelectViewController:(UIViewController *)viewController { if(tabBarController.view.superview.bounds.size.height-3== 0) { return YES; }else { return NO; } } Bone marrow-derived mesenchymal stem cells facilitate hematopoietic stem cell engraftment. Engraftment of hematopoietic stem cells (HSCs) via the transplanted cord blood (CB) graft is the major route for recovery of hematopoiesis in HSC transplantation (HCT). Nevertheless, the number of CB units available for HCT is limited, and grafting of HSCs from such a unit requires several months to produce recovery of lymphoid cells. Thus, the development of methods to accelerate CB engraftment is needed. Bone marrow (BM)-derived mesenchymal stem cells (MSCs) are known to enhance the engraftment efficiency of HSCs in some animal models. In this study, we investigated the effect of MSCs on the engraftment of HSCs derived from CB in a syngeneic HCT model. Stromal cells released from culture flasks up to 4 weeks were found to increase the number of engrafted HSCs in BM-engrafted mice.
These stromal cells could shorten the time required for reconstitution of the blood system. They thus facilitate engraftment, and support the development of a subsequent transplant.[Evaluation of the radiopharmaceutical 99mTc-IMP in the Q: VBA onchange event I have an Excel VBA that opens some extra page inside user form. So I have to handle its onclose/onload event. My issue is that the event handlers get fired properly at the beginning but not after opening the form. On the first opening of the form handler and loads data from other object "Sheets(i).Cells(j)" as part of for statement, but when I close the form and open again the form, handler does not give any response or even load data from the memory anymore. How can I fix it? Private Sub Workbook_SheetActivate(ByVal Sh As Object) Dim intRowNumber As Integer For intRowNumber = 1 To 31 Sheets(1).Cells(intRowNumber, 1).Value = Worksheets(1).Cells(intRowNumber, 4).Value Next End Sub Private Sub Workbook_SheetDeactivate(ByVal Sh As Object) End Sub Private Sub Workbook_SheetSelectionChange(ByVal Sh As Object, ByVal Target As Range) End Sub Private Sub Workbook_SheetChange(ByVal Sh As Object, ByVal Target As Range) End Sub A: So I found solution myself: Private Sub

Workbook_SheetActivate(ByVal Sh As Object) Dim intRowNumber As Integer For intRowNumber = 1 To 31 Application.EnableEvents = False Sheets(1).Cells(intRowNumber, 1).Value = Worksheets(1).Cells(intRowNumber, 4).Value Application.EnableEvents = True Next End Sub Private Sub Workbook_SheetDeactivate(ByVal Sh As Object) End Sub Private Sub Workbook_SheetSelectionChange(ByVal Sh As Object, ByVal Target As Range) End Sub Private Sub Workbook_SheetChange(ByVal Sh As Object, ByVal Target As Range) End Sub I just needed to turn off events before code runs. Q: Вывод
