Dvd Mundo Dance Vol.2 94 Clips [REPACK]

dvd mundo dance vol.2 94 clipsPhoto IT'S THE TIME of the year again.

The first Sunday after the beginning of each lunar cycle is called "Oahu's birthday." It's a pretty big deal here. It's like the Fourth of July.

As with many holidays, Oahu's birthday is a state holiday and part of the Hawaii State Fair. But since the celebrations occur earlier this year, July 10, 2012, at 5 p.m., is the real date. Now you may want to hold off on that state fair visit until after you've seen all the band concerts at the Waikiki Shell. Seriously, though, this is a really good time to visit.

Oahu's birthday will be the year's eighth state holiday since the Legislature passed the law in 1998. And, by the way, that's the reason the state has an Office of Hawaiian Affairs, which is "to use all of its powers, resources and authority to increase opportunities for Native Hawaiians to participate fully in the American economy and mainstream society." Hawaii's birthdays are kind of a big deal here. We have a good turnout for them. Last year, for example, the Fair had a record crowd of 295,895. The same can be said for the fireworks that go off at the finish line of the Fair Queen's Race. After all, it's no secret that Oahu is a magnet for visitors because of the state's tropical paradise location. There's a tourism reason for everything, including promoting the time of year when lots of people show up. Concerts by popular artists like Hoku, Duke Kahanamoku and the Smashing Pumpkins draw big crowds, and it's not really because they are Hawaiian. "We're not a state with a traditional music scene," said Roy Purdy, co-owner of Rude Awakenings, a bar in Waikiki. "Musicians will do concerts here, but we're not an island of musicians, and people know that. "At least not local musicians." Purdy said the state fair celebration for Oahu's birthday is a real deal. ♦
