It's made with HTML5, CSS3, Sass and very little JavaScript. This means it is cross-browser. It also runs very fast with very little memory usage. It's aimed at design professionals to simplify the task of mixing and matching colors. It's easy to use and start using right away. I can tell it's a good thing that it's got a lot of resources. This makes it very simple to continue with learning. It also means it's easy to evolve and add new features. I've got a custom sidebar to help with links to articles, tutorials, and inspiration. The color picker is made as a simple widget. It's not interactive, but it's easy to use. It has a color wheel, eye droppers, and the color grid. If you wanted you could add a color map as well. It's easier to use than the other apps and services out there that are similar. My Links page is the table that shows the other articles, tutorials, and inspiration. If you click on any of those, it will take you to that page. If you want to see more, just click on More. It's nice that you get a summary so you know what's in that collection. You can add to collections with the Add to Collection button. I have set the default bookmarks to Landscape. You can change the bookmarks to any other orientation. You'll find that this bookmarks list is compact. That
